North Carolina has $4.2 billion in unreserved funds, $243 million in remaining Coronavirus Relief Funds, and one in four kids is at risk of hunger. Let’s use that money to make a difference for North Carolina’s kids.

North Carolina's leaders' fiscal discipline means we have the funds we need to help North Carolinians. We can afford to appropriate $6 million to the Feeding the Carolinas food banks, ensuring they can continue to help people struggling with hunger.

Now is the time to make small investments that make big differences. Investing only $50,000 to develop a set of standard operating procedures for unserved prepared food recovery will allow organizations across the state to reduce waste while helping people struggling with hunger.
